

17. Students report that technology improves engagement.

18. Data on the number of students taking online courses at public institutions.

19. Online learning continues to be embraced by academic leaders and faculty who are focusing on pedagogical innovation, active learning approaches, as well as using adaptive learning tools and technology. As such, online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. In fact, 84% of students feel tech helps instructors teach better, but 4 in 5 say universities & professors could do more with technology.

20. Online learning provides ease, affordability and inclusion for an evolving, diverse student population. Online learning provides access, affordability and inclusion for an evolving, diverse student population.

21. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

22. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

23. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

24. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

25. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

26. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

27. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.

28. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes. Online learning is an increasingly popular and important modality for educators to improve student outcomes.